Good Q2 results and positive outlook

Dan Harverd

Research Analyst (+972) 3 710-2019 dan.harverd@db.com

Price target lowered to ILS 220 (from ILS 280), over 80% upside potential

We have lowered our price target to reflect higher discount rates given a slowing macroeconomic backdrop and softening in residential demand. Africa Properties trades at just 0.4x NAV while over half of its NAV is from properties already yielding NOI. We maintain a Buy rating as we expect a large NAV and earnings uplift in 2009 as some key projects come to fruition, and investor awareness of the positive NOI impact increases.

Strong Q2 results and positive outlook for remainder of year

Africa Properties reported strong Q2 results with net income at ILS 65m (vs a loss of ILS 22m in 2Q07). Rental income increased 62% to ILS 105m, while sales income more than doubled YoY to ILS 43m, on increases in rental and occupancy rates, completion of Phase 1B of Airport City Serbia, and some first-time consolidations. In addition there was a fair value gain of ILS 58m on completion of Classic 7 Business Park (phase 1) in Prague. During H2, the company is scheduled to complete additional projects in the Czech Republic, Bulgaria and Serbia, all of which are fully pre-leased. We expect these completions to lead to further fair value gains and expect the company to report FY08 net income of ILS 422m.

Cotroceni Mall, Romania as main milestone for 2009

Management noted that its largest project, Cotroceni Mall in Bucharest is on track for completion in H2 2009 and that it is already 80% pre-leased. We expect Cotroceni to generate in excess of €30m in NOI in 2010 and see its value rising to c€400m (ILS 2.1bn) on completion. We see completion of Cotroceni, Phase 1C of Airport City Serbia, and residential projects in Prague as the main drivers behind ILS 1.3bn in net earnings next year. However with residential demand softening in some key markets, as well as construction cost rising, delays are inevitable, in our view, on the residential side of the portfolio.

NAV-based PT of ILS 220; impact of interest rates on financing costs a risk

We value Africa Properties at ILS 220 per share based on a target 30% discount to NAV (page 3-4). Our NAV is based on a bottom-up analysis of the NPV of each development using a DCF methodology. Key risks include the impact of interest rates on financing costs, a cooling off of real estate prices, and execution risk given the scale and geographic spread of the portfolio (page 5).

Valuation

We value Africa Properties using a net asset value model that assesses the aggregate value of its yielding portfolio and developments. We use DCF for a bottom-up analysis of the NPV of each development, using country-specific discount rates for each project depending on its location to account for the different risk profiles of the countries in which Africa Properties operates. The rate is determined by the country risk-free rate, risk premium and a 2.5% terminal growth rate. Our ILS 220 price target is based on a 30% discount to NAV, which is in line with the peer discount.

Figure 1 shows the NAV divided according to income-yielding properties in Israel and Europe, followed by income-yielding properties in development and residential projects in development. We note that Israel currently accounts for 38% of asset value, while yielding properties in Europe account for 15%. We expect the weight of the latter category to increase substantially in the next two years as projects in development reach completion. Residential projects, that we believe are the highest risk, account for 23% of asset value.

Figures 2-4 show a breakdown of the valuation on a project-by-project basis.

Risks

- Projects under development are financed by loans of up to 80% of development cost. The credit crunch and rising interest rates may increase financing costs and lower the portfolio's value.
- Real estate prices in most of the countries that the company operates in have appreciated considerably in recent years and may cool off, harming development margins and profitability. We would highlight the residential market in Poland as presenting particular risk to the company, as prices there began to soften in 2007.
- There is considerable execution risk given the scale of the development portfolio (>3.0m sqm versus an existing portfolio of <0.5m sqm), and the geographic spread of operations. The company operates under multiple systems governing property, development and legal rights, and uses different sub-contractors in each country adding to execution complexity. This is somewhat mitigated by having several country offices.
- Some of the countries in which the company operates have external imbalances that may impact their currencies and lower Africa's profitability. We would highlight Romania given the company's strong presence and a gross financing requirement of 17% GDP.
